LASER HAIR REMOVAL

THINKING ABOUT LASER HAIR REMOVAL?

Ensure you are in safe hands by asking a few questions first!

Veronica Denwick from Laser Hair removal at the Bay believes that it is important to ask the right questions to ensure you are in safe hands if you are looking to have Laser hair removal. There have been recent stories on our current affair programmes that have warned people about ensuring they seek out experienced and adequately trained practitioners before proceeding with treatments. Here are a few questions Veronica recommends you ask before you put your safety into someone's hands;

1. Ask what training and qualifications the staff has? Who will be doing your treatment? Are they qualified? Do they have their Laser safety qualifications?
2. If the clinic offers you "permanent" hair removal, then get that in writing! It is simply not possible to guarantee "permanent hair removal". Permanent reduction can be achieved.
3. The clinic should provide a thorough consultation. Did they assess your skin type and hair colour? There are many other assessments that should be made also including medical history and medications that may affect treatment and outcomes.
4. Ask the clinic how many clients they have treated? Have they had much experience?
5. Ask the clinic about the type of Laser they use. Intense Pulsed Light (IPL) is frequently advertised as a Laser. IPL is not a laser. For clinically proven best results on hair removal, find a clinic that uses a class 4 medical Laser. The Light Sheer Diode is good for all skin types and considered to be the gold standard for laser hair removal.

Currently South Australia has no legislation in place to govern the laser hair removal industry. Veronica Denwick believes that this is long overdue and legislation would protect clients from potential injuries that may occur from treatments with an inexperienced practitioner.

Laser hair removal at the Bay only employs nurses who hold their laser safety certificate and have had extensive training to ensure safe treatments for their clients.

Veronica Denwick has travelled extensively overseas and networks with leaders in the field in the USA thus seeking out the best possible training in the industry to ensure a safe environment for her clients. Veronica has recently been made a 'Fellow' with her membership to the American Society of Lasers in Medicine due to her ongoing commitment to this society and her commitment to providing the best and safest treatments for her clients.
